

Hawai'i Pacific University Improves Student Engagement with Unified

About Hawai'i Pacific University

Hawai'i Pacific University, commonly referred to as HPU, is a private, and nonsectarian university in Honolulu and Kaneohe, Hawai'i. HPU is the largest private university in the central Pacific, most noted for its diverse student body of nearly 5,000 students, representing nearly 65 countries. The school's top academic programs are in Business Administration, Nursing, Biology, Diplomacy and Military Studies, and Social Work.

The Challenge

Hawai'i Pacific University was facing challenges in improving student interactions and providing them with a seamless digital experience. The university realized that a consolidated portal and mobile solution could increase student engagement and provide essential student services in a timely fashion.

Additionally, HPU was looking for a robust cybersecurity solution. They wanted an affordable yet a robust solution that could provide security against phishing and ransomware attacks.

The Solution

By selecting Unified Student, HPU was able to deliver a modern and enhanced student experience. It enabled the students to easily register for classes from a mobile app and get notified when they have an overdue balance or when grades get posted. HPU has improved student engagement by providing community and communication features commonly found on apps like LinkedIn[®].

Hawai'i Pacific University also improved its defense against phishing and ransomware attacks by introducing Unified identity provider and multi-factor authentication.
